

ABSTRACT

An improved furniture bag formed of a dual surface material. The dual surface material has an inside surface with a first coefficient of friction and an outside surface with a second and higher coefficient of friction. The lower coefficient of friction inside surface allows the bag to more easily side onto items of furniture. The higher coefficient of friction outside surface allows for easier handling of the bag and easier application of adhesives on tape and labels.